

Vetsuisse Faculty, University of Bern

Professor in Parasitology (Open Rank)

(Head of the Institute of Parasitology)

The Vetsuisse Faculty invites applications for the position of professor and director (head) of the Institute for Parasitology (start August 1st, 2019). Specialization in parasitology is required. Applicants should have earned a PhD and/or a habilitation or provide documentation of equivalent scientific qualifications.

An excellent record of several years' experience in research with orientation towards medical parasitology is essential. The successful candidate is expected to establish a competitive program of extramurally funded research in the field of parasitology. Applicants should have a strong teaching record and be willing to engage in teaching of students and residents in veterinary medicine. Language skills including German and/or French are not required, but will be judged as an asset.

The University of Bern is an equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages women to apply, application also includes job-sharing opportunity.

For additional information regarding the open position please contact the dean's office. Specifically, the "Synopsis of the Institute of Parasitology (IPB), Department of Infectious Diseases and Pathobiology (DIP), Vetsuisse Faculty, University of Bern" contains important information regarding the open position as Professor of Parasitology.

Applicants are invited to submit curriculum vitae, copies of exam transcripts or diplomas (habilitation, PhD or equivalents), a structured list of publications (last 6 years) and grants obtained, a cover letter outlining the principal research and teaching interests and finally a statement of professional goals no later than January 31, 2018.

These documents should be submitted (as a single pdf-file) to the "Dekanat der Vetsuisse-Fakultät, Länggassstrasse 120, CH-3012 Bern, Switzerland" (faculty@vetsuisse.unibe.ch).
